By Eleanor Takahashi
iNSKIP needs a category for non-fiction. I don't really "love" this book, but it is an important piece of information in today's global economy. I bought a copy for my kindle, and also purchased a hard copy for a friend who prefers "real" books. We both see this book as contributing to a better understanding of the role of China and the USA in today's world. A must read for anyone concerned about our relations China.

By Donna Jessup
I have only read the first chapter of this book (I have a lot of books going at the same time), but the authors have such a knack for putting complicated ideas into language most people can understand (I have a financial background), that it is an excellent book for lay people to read about modern China.

By Roger
Interesting insight into China and it's coming world dominance. Great easy read. Could do with some better editing and choice of words.

The first book to examine the unprecedented growth of China's economic investment in the developing world, its impact at the local level, and a rare hands-on picture of the role of ordinary Chinese in the juggernaut that is China, Inc.
Beijing-based journalists Juan Pablo Cardenal and Heriberto Arauacute;jo crisscrossed the globe from 2009-2011 to investigate how the Chinese are literally making the developing world in their own image.
What they discovered is a human story, an economic story, and a political story, one that is changing the course of history and that has never been explored, or reported, in depth and on the ground.
The "silent army" to which the authors refer is made up of the many ordinary Chinese citizens working around the world - in the oil industry in Kazakhstan, mining minerals in the Democratic Republic of Congo, building dams in Ecuador, selling hijabs in Cairo - who are contributing to China's global dominance while also leaving their mark in less salutary ways.
With original and fresh reporting as well as top-notch writing, China's Silent Army takes full advantage of the Spanish-speaking authors' outsider experience to reveal China's influence abroad in all its most vital implications - for foreign policy, trade, private business, and the environment.

"A fascinating book about a topic of great importance."
The Wall Street Journal
"Highly readable.... An important summary of some of the worst Chinese behaviour around the world."
The Economist
"[A] pioneering investigation... The book cuts to the political core by defining China's behaviour abroad as a mirror of its system at home."
Sunday Times
"Engaging and sympathetic portraits of some of the 750,000 Chinese who have set up retail businesses all over Africa selling the flood of consumer goods that pours out of China's factories."
Fascinating and vivid reportage.
Spectator
"Excellent macro-economic insight... But ultimately the human stories are what make [China's Silent Army] so compelling."
It ought to be required reading.
Prospect
"The amount of reporting that went into China's Silent Army is truly impressive. It is the sympathetic accounts of ordinary emigrants' experiences that provide the backdrop for the real insights of the book."
Financial Times
"The Spaniards' research is prodigious and the facts they unearth startling.... The Chinese should reflect on the questions the book raises."
Evening Standard
"Lively and humane... [China's Silent Army] offers essential information for all who wish to learn how the global reach of China Inc is transforming the lives of everyone on this planet."
Literary
"An excellent piece of investigative journalism... China's Silent Army is the first book to give such detailed coverage to the greatest Chinese emigration in history, which is changing the world, and to record the voices of those who are taking part... If you want to understand how China is changing the planet, read this book."
South China Morning Post
About the Author
JUAN PABLO CARDENAL has been reporting from and about China and the Asia-Pacific region since 2003 - first as Shanghai correspondent for El Mundo, and later from Singapore and Beijing for El Economista. He is currently based in Hong Kong.
HERIBERTO ARAUacute;JO arrived in Beijing in early 2007, initially working for the AFP agency as a Spanish correspondent in Beijing and then as a freelance reporter for both French and Spanish media.
