David Meyers, Beverly Meyers, Elise Meyers Walker : Look to Lazarus: The Big Store (Landmarks) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Look to Lazarus: The Big Store (Landmarks):

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. LazarusBy L. MizerThis book is about Lazarus, which was a collection of stores in Central Ohio. I first found the book at my local library and I purchased a copy for my mother, who worked in the main Lazarus store while she was in college. She really likes the descriptions and she remembers some of the people mentioned in the book. Very well done! 6 of 7 people found the following review helpful. incomplete historyBy gordoni worked at Lazarus from 1980 till the Campeau takeover. during this period of eight years, there were three presidents all of which tried to recreate the store's identity; each with their own dramatic story. none of these three men are mentioned in the book. the book was written by a fan of the lazarus family "insider group" so it is not objective in telling the store's history. very disappointing. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. For more than 150 years, FR Lazarus Company was the heart of downtown Columbus. Headed by the "first family of American retailing" with an eye for flair and a devotion to the customer, this uniquely midwestern institution won the hearts and minds of a community. Look to Lazarus draws on the memories of those who worked and shopped in this grand emporium to tell the unlikely story of a love affair between a city and a store. It was a love affair born of the solemn promise "You can always take it back to Lazarus, no questions asked."?

About the AuthorThe family that shops together doesn't necessarily write together, but the Meyers family felt it was the best way to tackle a book about Lazarus. After all, the story of the renowned department store was their story, too (the shopping part, anyway). David holds degrees from Miami University and Ohio State University, where his wife, Beverly, obtained a BS in art education. Elise, their daughter, earned a BA in art history from Hofstra University. After a thirty-year career in corrections, David now works at Columbus State Community College. Besides stints as a teacher and event planner, Beverly was a professional puppeteer and handled publicity for the Big Apple Circus. Elise has been a freelance magazine writer, a performer at Disney World and a member of a professional theater company in New York. She is also employed at Columbus State. David and Elise previously collaborated on Central Ohio's Historic Prisons (Arcadia, 2009) and Historic Columbus Crimes: Mama's in the Furnace, The Thing More (The History Press, 2010).
